Gospel Before Rights

To Surrender for the Gospel is Joy

Small Group Questions:

Thinking about this week's teaching, was there a particular point, verse or comment that caught your attention, challenged you, or raised a question?

What are our expectations about your standard of life? Is there any way in which laying down one of those expectations could help you to serve God better?

Knowing that we are so driven by the rights we have, how could the idea of voluntarily foregoing your "rights" revolutionize your attitudes towards others and this life?

Is the lesson Paul taught us this week reflected in your prayer life? How can it become even more so?

How can we continue to teach our children these lessons? Better yet, how can we best demonstrate these lessons to them?

We are so often tempted by external rewards. What reward is Paul talking about receiving and how can that become our main motivation?
